

YELLOWSTONE 1966

We, the co-editors, of the Yellowstone have enjoyed a hectic year of trying to catch you pictorially during your academic and candid life here at Rocky.

As you first go through this year's Yellowstone, we hope that it will encourage you to have as much fun, if not more good times next year. But as the years go by and you pick it up it will bring back the happy, sad, and exciting moments you experienced at Rocky Mountain College.

We'd like to give a special thanks to Roger Davis for the patience and the many hours he spent working on the annual with us.

This was the first symbol of Rocky Mountain College that freshmen and transfers see—it soon becomes familiar and a proud symbol to the students.

This is very familiar to Rocky students and although it is not the largest library in the world it does serve its students well. It is growing every year to meet the students needs.

OFFICE OF THE DEAN

MESSAGE TO CLASS OF 1966

Commencement suggests accomplishment, that something undertaken has been brought to a successful conclusion. But it also implies a larger meaning, that there still remains a road ahead, with yet another destination, or, in other terms, that man is uniquely an unfinished creation. To him, it seems, has been given the task of completing himself.

The phrase of our late president applies here, as we consider "the burden and the glory" of man's assignment, the freedom, the responsibility, the use of human resources, either to finish himself or to finish himself off. What to do with our possibilities, as a race and as individuals, is the inescapable question written large in human life.

A distinguished college president (William De Witt Hyde) once wrote of the unfinished nature of man and concluded with these lines:

Since what we choose is what we are,
And what we love we yet shall be,
The goal may ever shine afar;
The will to win it makes us free.

May your use of your life's possibilities in the years ahead make for freedom and for gladness. The best wishes of your college go with you.

Lawrence F. Small
Lawrence F. Small

To a Busy Man . . .

Who left a major national position as General Secretary for Higher Education of the United Church of Christ to come West to face the test and task of furthering the growth of a small college.

Whose wisdom, ability, and optimistic outlook has been instrumental in establishing a program that has contributed greatly to the academic and physical stature of the College and given impetus to long range planning for continued growth.

Who has always been willing to accept, without complaint, the loneliness of leadership in critical times.

Who possesses the fortitude to make difficult decisions at times when they must be made regardless of the effects upon him personally.

Who has taken the time to act on behalf of individuals in an unseen and unsung manner--doing such small things as securing an overcoat for a needy student to more complex ones such as personally finding financial assistance from outside resources to enable another to make it through. Little is known of these things. Little will be for they remain a part of the silent service of Christian involvement in which he believes.

Whose phenomenal drive and resilient spirit has enabled him to return from the depths of serious illness to again serve with constancy a cause he has long championed--excellence in private church-related higher education.

For these attributes and many others, we respectfully dedicate this 1966 Yellowstone to Dr. Philip Monroe Widenhouse, third president of Rocky Mountain College.

Faith in an institution enabled him to give up his first love of teaching to shoulder willingly and well difficult administrative tasks and give to many problems, both large and small, his full attention.

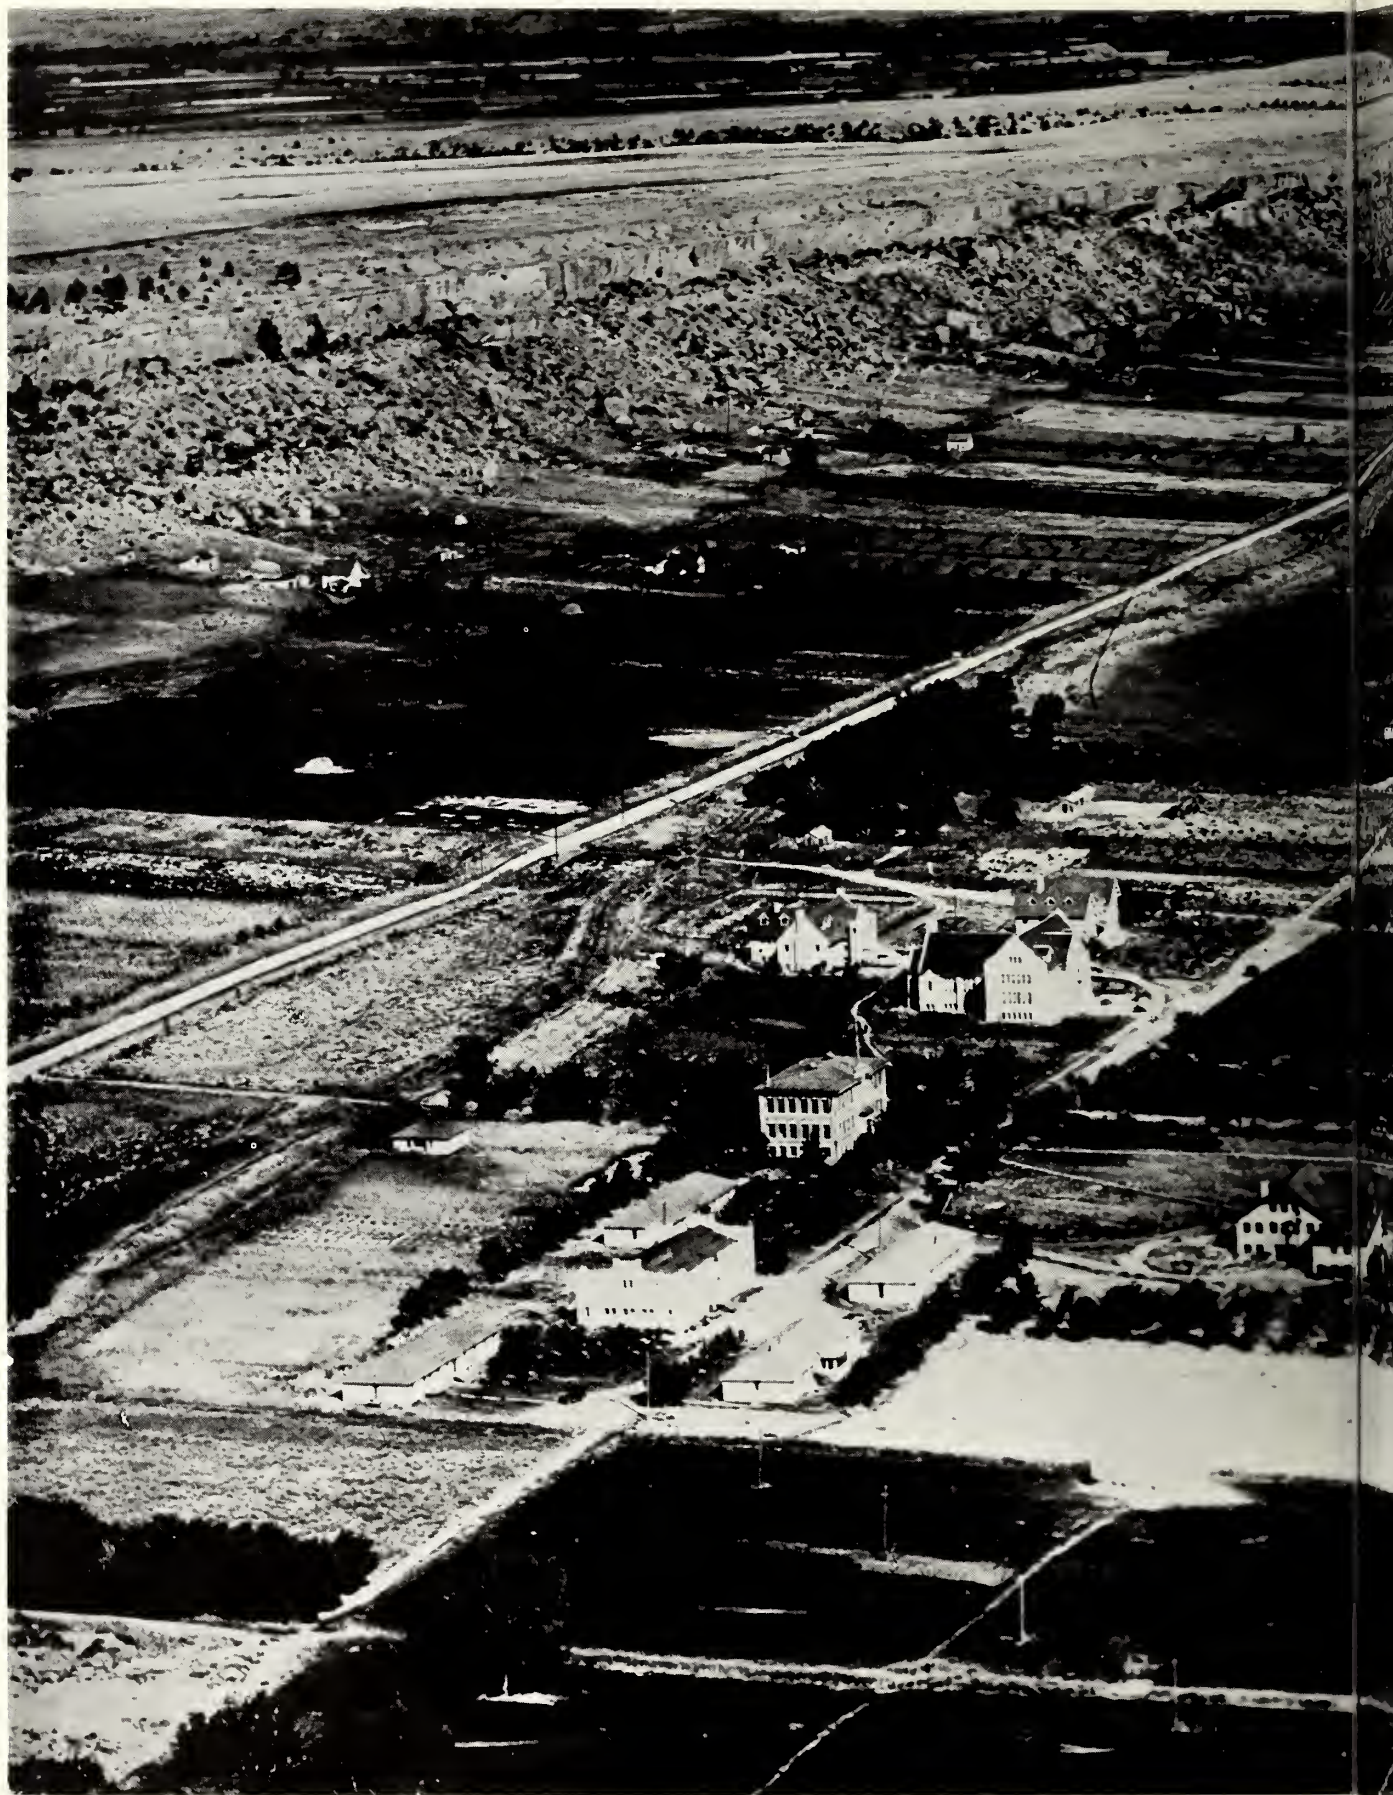

DR. LAWRENCE F. SMALL
Dean of the College
Acting President '65-66

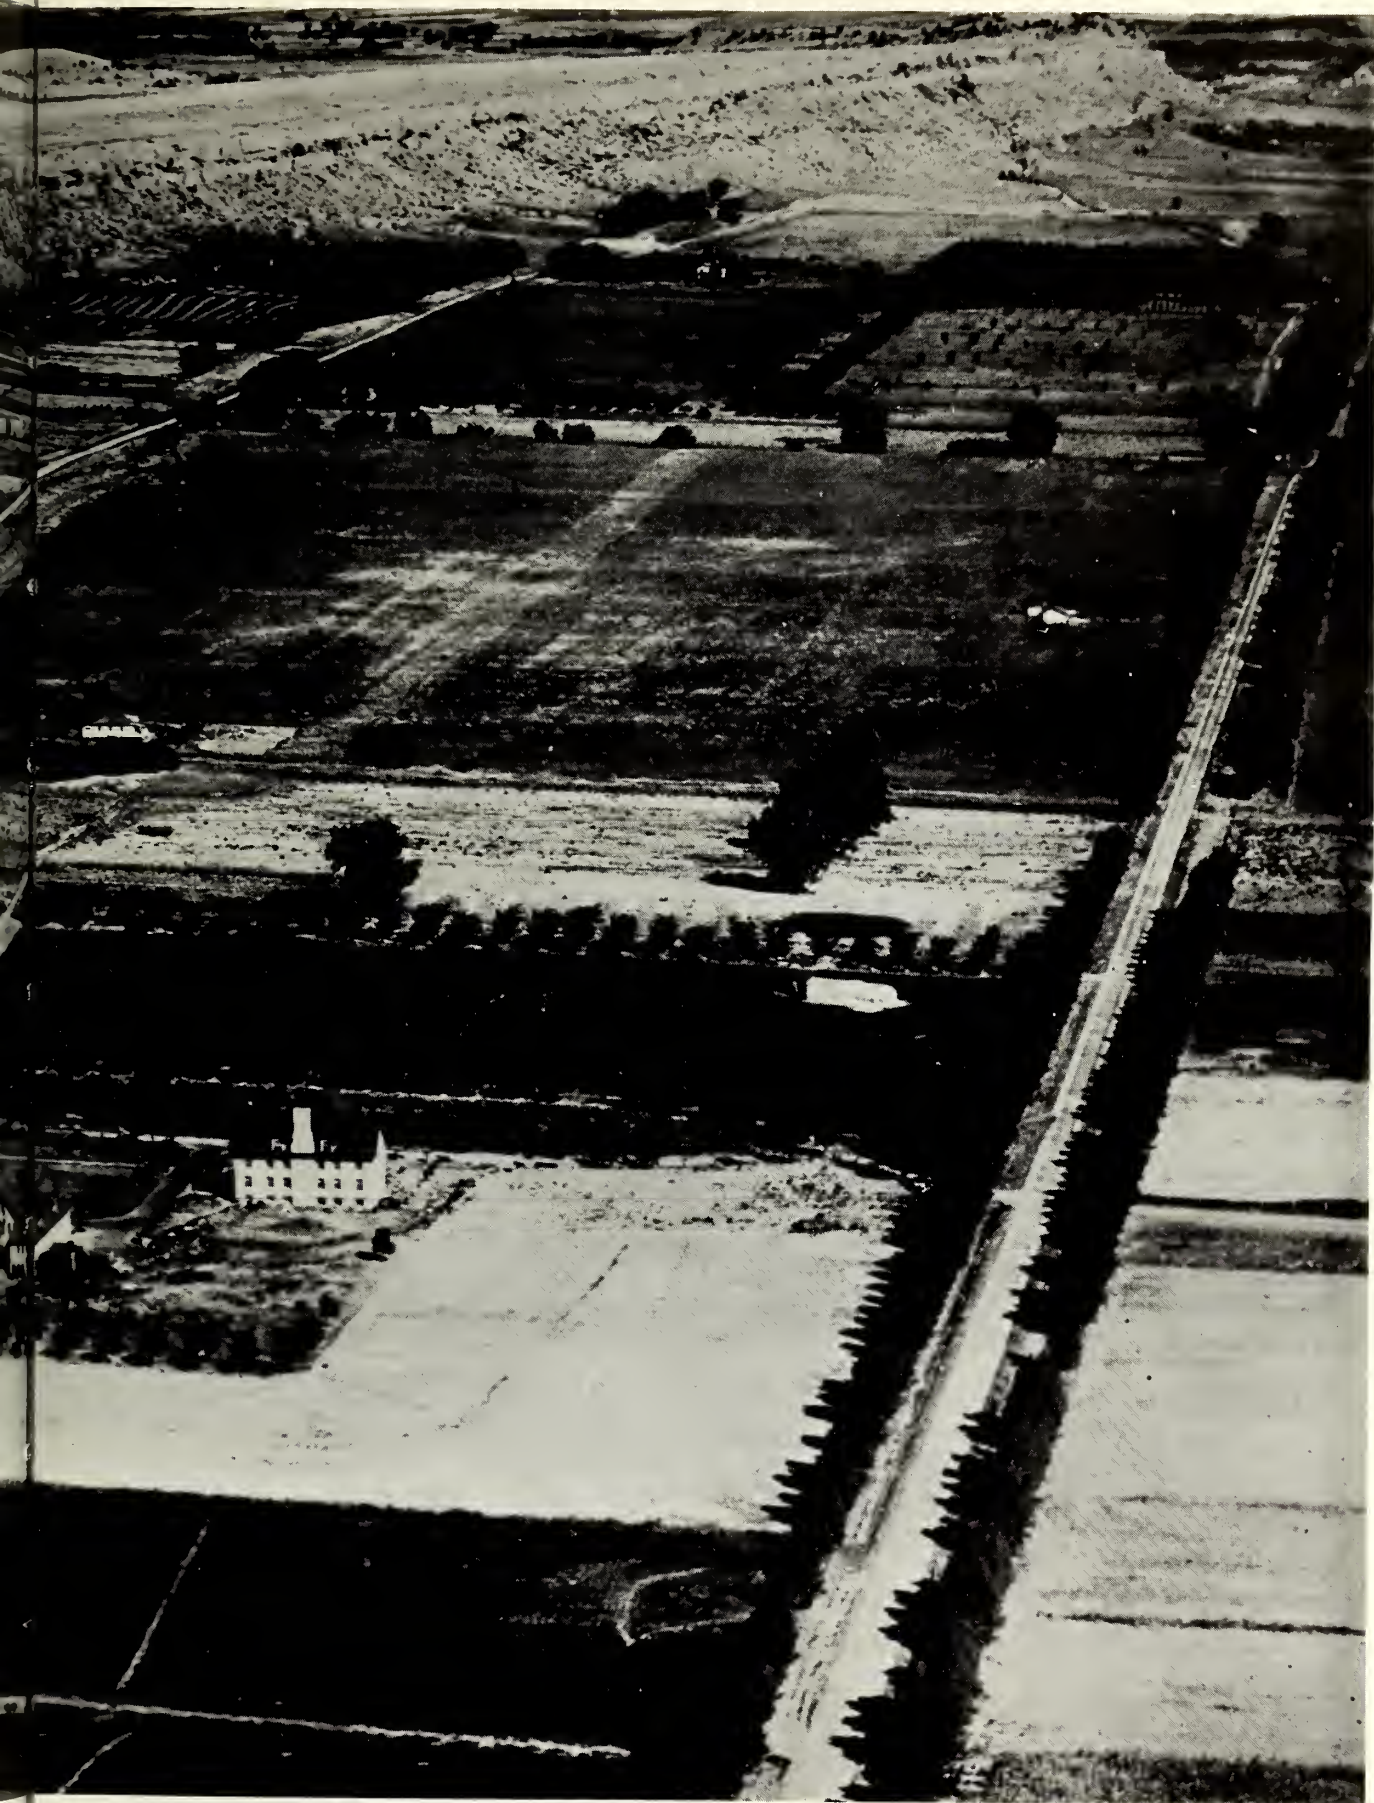

"It is the man who believes strongly, who lives by faith as well as by knowledge, who moves the world forward."

After four years or more of hard work and decisions. Rocky graduated the largest senior class it has ever had. We wish them all the luck in the world and hope their dreams and aspirations come true.

Growth as Seen by the Aerial Camera

A Rural Campus Surrounded by Farms in 1925

Although Red Lodge is not part of RMC, it seems to be just another segment of Rocky life to the skiers and view lovers. It is only a short distance from Rocky and when the snow arrives it seems even shorter.

Red Lodge skiing again. Which slope should it be? There is one for every type of skier, the ambitious, the novice, the old or the wild.

Tyler and Alden Halls in Picture; Farm land Fading Fast

Another segment of Montana scenery in the spring is just a short ride from Rocky and available to all nature lovers, bug hunters and/or rock hunters.

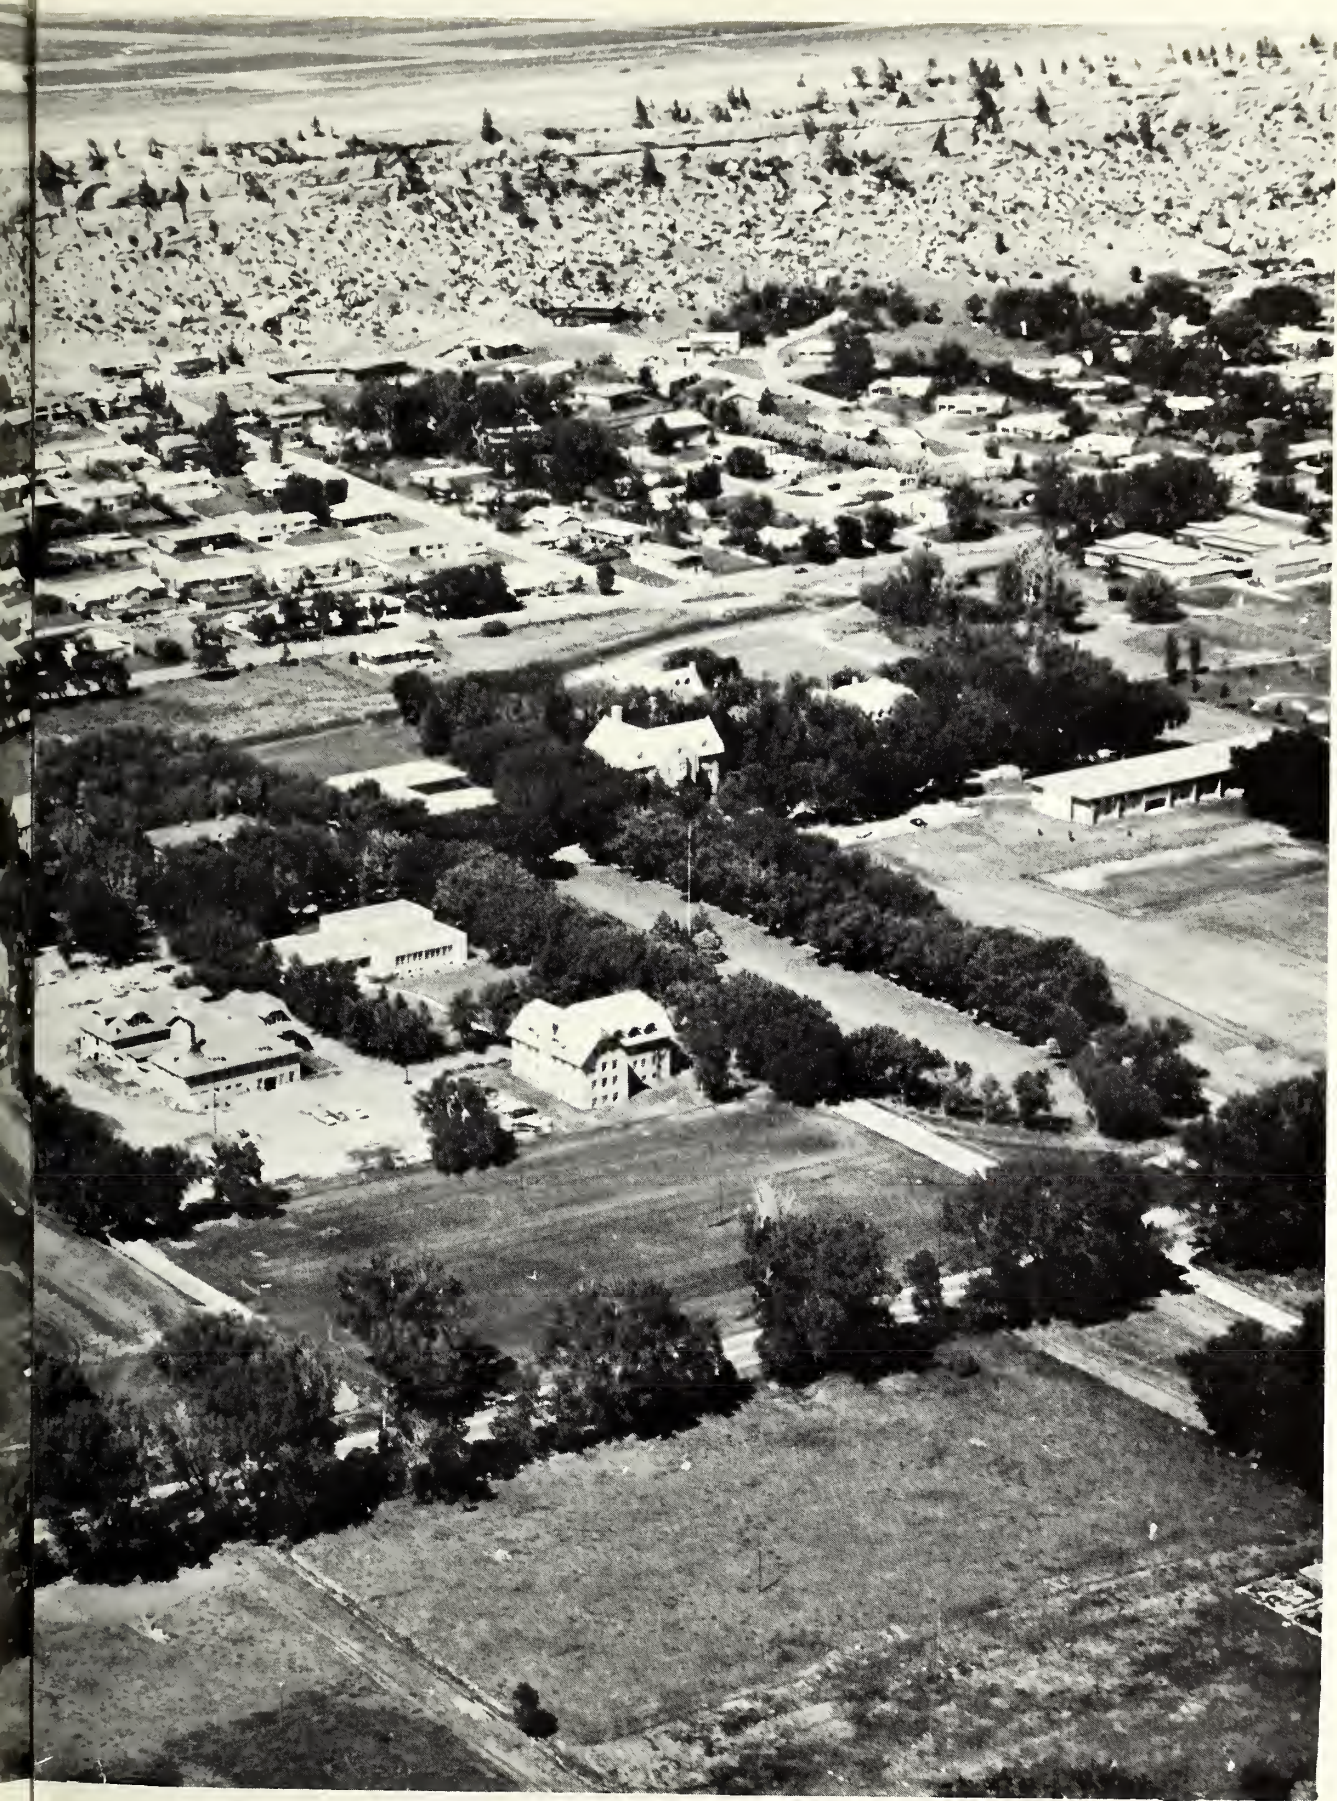

Overlooking the Rocky Mountain College Campus from on top of the Rims is a large Cross erected by members of the class of 1956. It stands as a constant reminder of the Christian heritage and the on-going outlook of our Alma Mater.

In Memoriam

Professor Charles Leonard Buck

April 3, 1913 - April 18, 1966

Dedicated Teacher

A Faithful Servant for 27 Years to the College

To him education was a means to greater service to others and to a greater understanding and appreciation of life. He made this philosophy meaningful by living by it daily.

To him living meant giving. His constant kindness and concern for individuals proved that Christian Faith can be a living and vital part of man's life.

His influence on others, as a result of his teaching, attained a chain reaction state even as he lived. This will continue. . . . As long as man seeks to serve man, Professor Buck will never be absent from our midst.

Rocky's biggest year in forensics included participation by 20 students in 7 tournaments, 4,500 miles of travel, and the winning of several trophies.

In October, Alain Mehl and Rodney Davis tied for 3rd in debate at the Eastern tournament. At Kearney, Nebraska, in November, teams of Mehl and Davis, Roger Hawthorne and Ed Reiter, and Dave Traxler and Bill Pruett won 9 of 15 debates. Hawthorne won Rocky's 1st trophy of the year at Bozeman in January by winning the oratory contest. He repeated in the Wyomont tournament at Rocky in February as Davis took 1st in extemporaneous speaking, and Hawthorne and Reiter captured 2nd in debate.

The most prestigious win of the year came at the state tournament held at Rocky in early April when Hawthorne won the state championship in oratory and the huge Montana Power trophy for Rocky. Nicola Kouttab took 3rd and John Feathers was in the semi-finals of the same event. Virginia Madeen and Bob Loeffler were in the finals of interpretation. A week later, Hawthorne, Reiter, Pruett and Davis represented Montana Alpha chapter of Pi Kappa Delta at the province convention and tournament at Gearhart, Oregon, on the Pacific Ocean.

In the Big Sky tournament at Missoula April 28-30, Hawthorne and Mehl tied for 5th place among 46 teams in debate, and Hawthorne took 4th in oratory. The forensics season ended with Hawthorne representing Montana men at the Interstate Oratorical Contest held at Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan, May 5 and 6.

Debaters engaged in 101 rounds of contest debate. In team debate, they won 43 and lost 44, a commendable record considering that nearly all were in their first year of college debating. They met some 28 colleges and universities from 10 states—North Dakota to Washington, Oregon to Kansas and Iowa.

Other students who participated in forensics were John Paulson, Jenni Aley, Bob Ramsey, Mary Lou Frisbee, Mickey Dobbins, Kathleen Everhart, Allen Siroky, Keith Money, Jerry Hurley and Tom Bird. Robert H. Lyon was coach.

Pi Kappa Delta members were: Aley, president, Madeen, vice-president, Traxler, secretary, Sandra Dew, Feathers, Hawthorne, Pruett, Davis Reiter, Mehl, Lyon, and Dr. Philip M. Widenhouse.

RMC Actors Do Tough Task Well

By D. W. Bowler
Gazette Managing Editor

Five players from Rocky Mountain College transported their audiences from the intimacy of Losekamp Hall to the heart-rending life on "Long Day's Journey Into Night" in three performances of Eugene O'Neill's play, ending Saturday night.

It took the calm, stage-setting first act to get the audiences into the family life of James and Mary Tyrone and their two sons, Edmund and Jamie Jr. After that, it was living the roles with them.

O'Neill's autobiographical play (he's Edmund, the youngest son with tuberculosis) isn't an easy one for college students to perform. Its monologues are long, call for constant shifting of emotions from joy to anger to despair to hope.

Director Charles Heimerdinger's cast did it masterfully.

The viewer felt both pity and disgust as Joseph Demyon Jr. as Jamie and Gregory Kastl as Edmund baited and sorrowed with their father, Roger Hawthorne, over the failure of their mother, Virginia Madeen, to kick the drug habit.

Viewers seemed to move in with the maid Cathleen, Margaret Lough, rather than watch in detachment. You felt you were watching the Tyrone family at its machinations rather than observing a play about the Irish actor and his family.

The play was well cast and well performed. Curses which interspersed the Tyrone male conversation were voiced like the author intended, not with the usual emphasis of an amateur player relishing the opportunity.

For those who don't recall call the plot, it starts after breakfast. It's a calm scene as father James lights his cigar and appears solicitous about the looks and welfare of an obviously worse-for-something-or-other wife in a frowsy gown.

Long Day's Journey into Night

Hawthorne and Madeen

You are aware this is the calm before the storm which builds as you find out James Tyrone is a bit of a miser, his eldest son Jamie is a drinking, wenching bum and Edmund took consumption while seeking his own way in the seaports of the world.

Mama Tyrone shifts from the days of now back to her joys in the convent, playing the piano, her romance with the handsome young actor and what his penny pinching ways have done to them all when they wind up in the stark climax.

It's gutsy stuff.

Heimerdinger and clan were brave to try it.

And they pulled it off.
